General Butt Declares the System Has Failed Utterly.

Sir: You quote General Leonard Wood as saying: "In twenty-two days since the President's mobilization order was issued to the National Guard only 43,000 men out of a possible 130,000 have been sent to the border from the Department of the East."

There are 41,000 men still in camp and 49,000 still to be enlisted.

Compare this to von Moltke preparedness in 1870, nearly half a century ago. During the night of July 16, 1870, the royal order for the mobilization of the army was issued, and when his majesty arrived in Mayence a It is the vice of the Hay system that it What One Does Not Learn in College. fortnight later he found 300,000 men as-
